BEVERLY/WILMINGTON — High school graduation is an exciting time for all young adults. This is especially true for Andrew Medros and his family. On June 4th, the 18-year old Wilmington resident graduated from the Landmark School in Beverly. He has been challenged with two significant issues, diabetes and dyslexia. But these things could not hold the determined young man back. Now he goes on to college.

His challenge began when he was in seventh grade. First he was diagnosed with diabetes. At the young age of 13, he had to learn a com-

Wilmington Community coming together for eight-year-old boy

WILMINGTON — In the face of adversity, Wilmington residents have rallied around Brodie Rawson, an eight-year-old recently diagnosed with Burkitts Lymphoma.

Rawson is currently a second grader at Shawsheen Elementary School, although a stuffed monkey named Steve sits in his chair for the time being while his owner undergoes treatment. Like most other boys his age, his interests include Legos and the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

For weeks, Rawson had been troubled by stomach pains. He was initially treated for constipation, which eased the pain. Soon after completing treatment, his stomach issues came back. A test for strep throat came back positive - again, the pain came back after treatment.

Another positive strep throat culture and another round of antibiotics were cut short five days into the ten day treatment, when Rawson began vomiting.

"I did an assessment for myself," said Erica Brodie, the boy's mother. Brodie is a nurse, so when she only heard bowel movements on one side of his body, she knew something was wrong. "I took him to the ER."

Rawson was thought to have intussusception, where the bowel curls up into itself. Doctors attempted to fix the issue, but found a blockage. The mass was sent for tests and finally revealed a fairly rare form of cancer.

On Monday, Rawson started his second of six rounds of chemotherapy. Far from fighting alone, loved ones have come together to join in Rawson's battle. A family friend has organized a GoFundMe (<https://www.gofundme.com/brodie-rawson>) to help pay the family's medical bills.

Rawson's mother, Erica Brodie, is a single mother and nurse who will take time off to help her son while he battles the disease. 135 people have raised over $8,000 to date.

Jenn Kwiatkowski and

Kate Ackermann have also organized a raffle and fundraiser for Rawson at Villanova Hall on Saturday, June 18 from 5-8 p.m. Items for auction include Red Sox tickets, Altitude trampoline park passes, a Windows tablet, and more.

Tickets for the event are $20 per family in advance or $10 per person at the door. Interested parties are advised to contact Kwiatkowski at JennKw@outlook.com or kate_ackermann@hotmail.com to purchase tickets.

In a show of solidarity from a younger crowd, Rawson's fellow Cub Scouts of Troop 136 have agreed to postpone their moving on ceremony. Rather than

RMLD introduces 'Shave the Peak' to cut costs on summer electric bills

Shave the Peak! In its continuing effort to educate the public about energy efficiency, Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) hopes you will join in its efforts to Shave the Peak and help reduce RMLD's summer electrical peak and the cost of electricity to RMLD customers. The summer demand peak season is June 1 through August 31.

Approximately 25 percent of the electric bill is determined by how well RMLD conserves during that one true peak hour. That one hour, referred to as the peak demand, occurs on a hot weekday afternoon in June through August, usually between the hours of 2 and 5 pm.

The defining hour represents the highest point of customer consumption of electricity for all of New England. The prediction of the peak is done by the Independent System Operator - New England (ISO-NE).

"Prediction of the peak may be called multiple times as the summer progresses to ensure that the actual peak is captured," said RMLD General Manager Coleen O'Brien. "For example, if a heat wave in early July brings the annual peak thus far, ISO-NE will call for the peak. Subsequently, later in July, if a more intense heat wave occurs, another peak is called."

RMLD asks you to voluntarily reduce electric use when peak electric demand is predicted. Customers will be notified of potential electric peaks through several means of communication.

"We are asking our customers through emails, texts, and social media (Twitter: @Reading Light) to join our initiative in helping to reduce the summer peak," said O'Brien. "We will be sending email blasts along with tweets, and possibly using town notification systems, when it appears a possible peak hour may occur."

You can help by postponing the use of appliances like washers and dryers until later in the day, shutting off pool pumps for a few hours, raising the setting on your air conditioning thermostat a few degrees or cooking dinner on the grill. As well, forwarding our notification will also help to get the word out. SHAVE THE PEAK!

McAuliffe graduates from Albany Medical College

Liane M. McAuliffe, a former Wilmington High School graduate and resident of Wilmington, graduated Albany Medical College on May 26, 2016, having received a full scholarship from the United States Navy under the HPSP's competitive scholarship program.

The graduation was held at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, Saratoga Springs, New York, where Liane received not only her M.D. degree, but also her commission and promotion to Lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Dr. McAuliffe was the recipient of the Lamb Foundation prize, given to the medical student who most nearly approached the ideal in physician-patient relationships. She also received Recognition for Excellence during her senior rotation for having demonstrated dedication to teaching, outstanding clinical skills, insight into learning styles, and epitomizing professionalism in medicine.

Liane is the daughter of Jean and John Chang of Wilmington, and William P. McAuliffe of Naples, FL (formerly of Wilmington.) At her graduation, Liane's stepfather, John, also a physician, placed the doctoral hood on Liane, signifying her success in completing her medical degree.

Following a brief visit here in her home town, of Wilmington, Dr. McAuliffe will begin residency training at the Naval Medical Center in San Diego, California. Upon completion she will serve in support of our Armed Forces caring for soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines, as well as their families and retirees around the world. Liane is looking forward to specializing in Emergency Medicine.

RMLD to increase rates by five-to-seven percent

Reading Municipal Light Department's (RMLD) Board of Commissioners voted 4-0 at its regular board meeting on May 26 to increase rates by approximately 5-7 percent.

RMLD analyzes its Cost of Service on an annual basis and its projections and reconciliations on a monthly basis. A revised six-year plan is produced. RMLD and the Town Managers/Selectmen meet biannually to enable RMLD to present and summarize any key components that would contribute to a rate increase affecting the subsequent budget process. A preliminary estimate of 7-9 percent was presented at the fall meetings. This provides preliminary data for town budget preparation.

As the spring rolls around, RMLD has more actual data available with respect to New England projected transmission and capacity costs, along with a completed review of RMLD expenses. This new information reduced the preliminary estimate to 5-7 percent.

"The bulk of the 5-7 percent increase comes with the rising costs of capacity and transmission costs in the New England area. Specifically for NEMA (Boston) Zone, the re-building of Salem Harbor Station capacity is shared amongst the utilities," said General Manager Coleen O'Brien. "A lesser percentage of the increase is attributed to a flat/decrease in sales and RMLD's ability to uphold its fiduciary duty to recover its production costs and to continue to ensure solid financial standings through best business utility practices on operating ratios and meeting its below-the-line fiduciary obligations. The increase varies slightly by rate class and usage, and will be effective July 1."

The customer using a monthly average of 500 kWh will see a $4.81 (6.64%) monthly increase and the customer using 750 kWh will see a $7.03 increase (6.57%). RMLD will continue to have one of the lowest electric rates in the state along with proven reliability and safety records.

NEW MILEAGE RATES FOR 2016

Every year the IRS looks at what it actually costs to run a car, then sets the rate per mile that drivers can deduct for business, medical or charitable use of the car.

Some drivers keep records of their actual costs—gas, maintenance, even depreciation—and use those figures to back up deductions. This makes most sense when the vehicle is used exclusively for business. For most of us, a contemporary mileage log—noting deductible miles as you drive them—is a better idea.

This year's standard mileage rate for business is 54 cents a mile, down 3 1/2 cents from last year. The rate for medical travel and moving drops 4 cents to 19 cents a mile. But the allowance for charitable driving remains at 14 cents, fixed by Congress some years ago. In addition, you can write off the cost of tolls and parking, in addition to state and local personal property taxes that were paid on the car.

You'll get lots of good, money-saving advice from the tax-and-finance professionals at:

Tewksbury Public Library to screen new Market Basket Documentary, June 21

The Tewksbury Public Library is screening the new documentary, "Food Fight: Inside The Battle for Market Basket," on Tuesday, June 21, from 8:30-10pm. The Tewksbury Library is the first library in the state that has been granted permission to show the film.

Throughout the summer of 2014, a corporate food fight played out in dozens of communities impacting tens of thousands of workers and the economies of three states. When the faction of the Market Basket board headed by Arthur S. Demoulas fired his cousin and arch-rival Arthur T. Demoulas as long-time CEO of the successful supermarket chain, it set off a firestorm that sparked one of most unique corporate dramas in American history. It's what the New York Times called "the last stand for the middle class."

Within days of hearing the news that their beloved "Artie T" had been axed, several high-ranking managers resigned, others were fired. Truckers stopped trucking. Warehouses stopped supplying. Vendors stopped shipping. Customers stopped shopping. Employees picketed in parking lots. Practically overnight, the $4 billion dollar business, with 71 stores scattered across three states, ground to halt. Governors from two states were called in to negotiate a settlement.

Throughout the entire summer, workers, managers and customers were galvanized. They didn't want more money, better benefits or work conditions. They only wanted back Arthur T, a quiet leader who operated on simple, long-held family values he learned from his grandfather who started the business nearly 100 years ago - treat your workers well, give customers "more for their dollar", and you'll build the American dream.

What unfolded for the next seven weeks erupted into a major news story that gripped New England and churned across the country. It's the saga of a Greek immigrant who lived the American dream and the nightmare of his descendants, with fundamentally different views of how to run a successful business, feuding for control. It's a new take on the struggle for non-union workers and loyal customers to get a fair shake in a world where the 1% seems to pull all the strings. It is a distinctly 21st century drama where ideals, personalities, passions, old tactics and new tools turn conventional ideas about labor, management and consumers on its head.

Only one film crew was on the ground throughout the summer, following the fear, anger, hope and courage of a most unlikely cast of characters. By consistently being the folks that "kept showing up," the filmmakers gained unique trust and access to people who are central to the Market Basket saga.

Food Fight is the story of the battle to save Market Basket, and about the power of ordinary, passionate people to rewrite corporate history.

Adults and teens from Tewksbury and beyond are invited to attend this free event. Complimentary movie refreshments will be served. Due to limited space, attendees are asked to pre-register and reserve their seats by calling 978-640-4490 x 205, emailing rhayes@mvlc.org, or visiting the library's online calendar of events at www.tewksburypl.org.

The event will take place in the library's first-floor, handicap-accessible Meeting Room. The library is located at 300 Chandler Street, at the corner of Chandler and Main Street (Route 38).

Pavement lasted for 30 years

Burlington Avenue was paved with cotton

By LARZ F. NEILSON
Editor Emeritus

In a college English literature class, the instructor was discussing a poem which referred to the cotton roads in Middlesex County. He assumed it to be a road so soft that it seemed like puffs of cotton. He was quite taken with that concept, and had little interest in my observation that it was probably a reference to cotton fabric in road construction.

He knew literature, but not history — at least not an obscure story of local history. The story of the cotton road had appeared in the Town Crier in March 1967.

In Wilmington and elsewhere in Middlesex County in the 1930s, cotton was used in the road pavement. This was not cotton puffs to make it soft, but cotton fabric to make it strong.

The program was rolled out under the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. During the depression, demand for cotton was way off, and the textile mills of the Merrimack Valley had an incredible excess of denim that had no market.

Someone came up with the idea of incorporating the fabric into road paving, possibly as a project on Chapter 90 roads, as state/county roads are known. Burlington Avenue was selected for the test road. After the road was graded, a hot oil base was put down. On top of that, there was the layer of denim cloth. Then on top of that was another application of oil and gravel.

Oil mix was commonly used for paving town roads in that era.

The cotton reinforced pavement held together for some 25 or 30 years with no need of repaving, and with no pot holes. Eventually other work being done on the road resulted in its removal.

The highway superintendent at the time was Daniel Robert Carter. His father, William Henry Carter II, known as "Bill Hen Two," had been superintendent when the job entailed grading gravel roads with a horse-drawn scraper.

One of the men who worked on the cotton road project was Jimmy White, who later became the highway superintendent. His grandson, of the same name, is a member of the Wilmington Police Dept.

The technique was used elsewhere. An article has been found from Greenville, Mississippi, from 1939.

It is not known why the process was not continued. Possibly the asphalt and concrete industries had the ear of officials writing the paving specifications in road building contracts. Or possibly the program used up all the surplus cotton. The cotton mills ceased production in the same era.

On Monday, June 13, 2016 at the Wilmington Memorial Library at 7:00pm there will be a presentation on the "Five Wishes".

This is the first living will that talks about your personal, emotional and spiritual needs as well as your medical wishes. It allows you to choose the person who will make medical decisions if you cannot and lets you say exactly how you want to be treated.

It's easy to use, all you have to do is check a box, circle a decision or write a sentence or two. We all have heard of health care proxies. This digs deeper and helps make decisions for us. Presented by Cathy

H. Ober, Care Transitions Coordinator Beacon Hospice.

We would also like to take this time to congratulate Joseph Travares in receiving the Wilmington Department of Elderly Service scholarship award on Friday, June 3, 2016 at the Wilmington High School Scholarship night. Joseph started volunteering at the Buzzell Senior Center when he was in the eighth grade. At that time he helped establish our first Wii Bowling Program. Everyone loved it and from there we started a league.

We are very happy to say that we started to compete with surrounding area Senior Centers, and currently have a trophy in our front lobby. Due to Joseph, encouragement and dedication in introducing Wii, this program is a part of our regular programming at the Buzzell Senior Center.

We are grateful to Joseph for bringing this program to us.

Some words of advice to all of this year's high school graduates

By: MORGAN HAKALA
News Correspondent

office@yourtowncrier.com

It's that time of year again. High school seniors are taking that famous walk across the stage and are receiving their diplomas.

Just like that, they have moved onto the next, beginning stages of adulthood. This time is exciting but also nerve-racking. The daily routine of high school and the familiarity of friends they have known for most of their lives is suddenly in their rearview mirrors, and they are faced with new challenges and opportunities. It can be really scary to leave behind the past, but, as I know from personal experience, life beyond high school only gets better.

The years after high school are the perfect time to discover more about yourself as an individual. It's a time to take risks and make mistakes. Don't be afraid to mess up or fail. Try, try again.

The path after high school might not always be easy whether you go to college or not. Trust me, if you do go to college, it isn't all fun and games. It is a lot of work. But, in the end, it will be so worth it.

Being away from home will help you become a more mature and responsible adult. The great thing is that freshmen year everyone is in the same boat as you are, so you can rely on one another for help along the way. It can be a tough transition period for some but give it a chance. Try new things and put yourself out there. You never know if you will like something until you try it. Be open to making new friends, but don't be afraid to do things on your own too. It's okay to eat alone in the dining hall or to go to a club meeting by yourself. By doing this, you will probably end up meeting even more people and broadening your horizons.

Now is the time to start discovering your vocation. But, what exactly is your vocation? It is your calling in life. It is what you are passionate about. It is something that brings you joy. And, it can change as you grow and change. I think something that is so important to keep in mind while moving forward after graduating from high school is your own personal happiness.

It can be so easy to get swept away in everything that is going on around you, and it is easy to be influenced by others. But, if you don't like the path that you are going down, only you can change that.

Major in what you want to major even if it doesn't necessarily mean a high paying job in the future. You want to take classes that you'll actually enjoy and be interested in. If college isn't for you, that's okay. Start working, get out there, and make a name for yourself. Be proud of who you are and for getting this far already. Your life is truly just beginning, so go out there and grab it by the horns.

Congratulations to all of the recent high school graduates and good luck as you start this next chapter in your life!

The North Street Playground is open for business

Dear Editor:

The North Street Playground is open for business! It is important to acknowledge the folks who gave their time and support to this project.

Thank You to Town Manager Richard Montuori and Nancy Reed of the Community Preservation Committee, and the voters at the 2013 Town Meeting for the funding and approval of this great project for the kids. The playgrounds were in sore need of an upgrade. School Department Business Manager Sheri Matthews for her support and Maintenance Director Jon Marchand for his assistance along with his staff.

Thank You to Jeanne Dunn for spearheading the design team and layout of the playground and its pieces, finding the most fun in the space we had for a price that was in budget! The kids will love it! And Principal Angela Kimble for working with the team and giving us access when needed.

Thank You to Mike Merrill of Colonial Construction, for donating his excavation and site prep including excavators, dump trucks, employees, a bobcat and staying late many nights. Additional site prep support came from Giasullo Construction, and Matt Ginsburg. We could not have done it without you, Mike.

Thank You to our parent volunteers who contributed on build day and brought the structure to life. Everyone came and WORKED the entire time they were there. Special shout out to Lenny Dunn, Ryan Nelson, Brian Donahoe, Victor Impink and Meghan Lafey who gave many hours of additional time to run the main structure home.

Also thank you goes out to Sara Cohen for documenting the build and updating everyone via social media and cleaning the site and Mac and Pat Takach for spending HOURS getting the mulch into the tight spaces, along with the Chesbrough and Smith families.

Finally, thank you to Mark Ingersoll of D & J Construction for spreading the entire rest of the two mountain of playground surfacing mulch and donating his Bobcat services. Again, we could not have done it without you!

The best thing everyone can do is use the playground and keep it clean. We really need stewardship of our community spaces so that they will become wonderful gathering places in our town. No matter what the future brings for our school buildings, these spaces will be preserved for the families of Tewksbury to enjoy for years to come.

I hope you will consider helping with the Trahan Playground Build on June 11 and the Heath Brook on June 25. I think all will agree it is a rewarding experience and so very important for our kids.

Thank you all!
Paige Impink

Wilmington resident continuing Father-Daughter Tradition

Jeff Piazza of Wilmington is joining an expected 9,000 individuals stepping out in support of all types of cancer in the nation's most successful single-day fundraising walk on Sunday, Sept., 25, 2016 at the Boston Marathon® Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai.

The event allows participants to choose among four route options: Marathon Walk (26.2 miles - from Hopkinton), Half Marathon Walk (13.1 miles - from Wellesley), 10K Walk (6.2 miles - from Newton), or 5K Walk (3.1 miles - from the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston's Longwood Medical Area).

All routes finish at the Copley Square Finish Line. Walkers who are not going to be in the Boston area on Sept. 25 can also register as Virtual Walkers.

Whether participating for themselves, loved ones, neighbors, or co-workers, each walker shares a common purpose: to raise money for the Jimmy Fund to support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

This year will mark four years of tradition that Jeff and his daughter Hannah, 6, are walking since the passing of his wife and Hannah's mom, Dina, in 2013. Dina was a childhood cancer survivor at Boston's Jimmy Fund Clinic.

In 2013, Jeff, Dina and Hannah were to walk in the event together per Dina's bid to give back to the organization that saved her life as a child. Since her sudden passing, Jeff and Hannah make it a yearly tradition to walk on team We Heart Dina with friends and family on that famed September day.

▲ Jeff's wife, Dina, for whom he walks.

Walkers support one another as they join friends and family, survivors, doctors and caregivers, and celebrities.

The walkers are treated to 12 refueling stations along the course as well as poster-sized photographs of Walk Heroes displayed at each mile marker as inspiration, and a celebration at the Copley Square finish line, complete with food, music, and speaking program.

The Boston Athletic Association has supported the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk for 28 years as participants have raised more than $100 million for Dana-Farber and the Jimmy Fund. Walker fundraising has fueled cancer care and groundbreaking research such as Dana-Farber's unique personalized cancer medicine initiative.

To register for the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai or to support a walker or volunteer, visit www.JimmyFundWalk.org or call (866) 531-9255.

North Shore Jazz Project merges with Salem Jazz and Soul Festival
Two North Shore music nonprofits with similar missions have merged. The Salem Jazz and Soul Festival and North Shore Jazz Project filed merger paperwork with Massachusetts' Attorney General in late 2015 and will retain the name Salem Jazz and Soul Festival.

The band, made up of some of the best young jazz musicians on the North Shore, will retain its concert schedule with SJSF. According to Larry Clafin Jr., SJSF's co-founder and executive director, merging these two nonprofits has been a goal for a couple years.

The Salem Jazz and Soul Festival was founded in 2007 and will celebrate its 10th season this summer. With a mission of producing free concerts and supporting music-education causes on the North Shore, the festival puts on eight free concerts a year, culminating in a two-day festival at the Salem Willows, featuring 10 bands, music-education and family tents, artisan vendors and beer pavilion.

The 2016 Salem Jazz and Soul Festival will take place August 20-21. For more information about Salem Jazz and Soul or to audition for the 2016 NSJP All Stars please visit salemjazzsoul.org.

The declarer can draw deductions

Albert Einstein said, "The grand aim of all science is to cover the greatest number of empirical facts by logical deduction from the smallest number of hypotheses or axioms."

That applies at the bridge table. Players must make deductions, often with incomplete data.

In yesterday's column featuring this deal, South was in four spades. He learned that West, who passed as dealer, held the club queen-jack (from his opening lead), the spade queen (after drawing two rounds of trumps) and the heart ace (from playing on that suit before touching diamonds). So, deducing diamonds wasn't difficult.

Today, it is harder in four hearts after West leads his singleton spade queen. How should South plan the play?

In the auction, after North correctly rebid two spades, South moved with three hearts, aware that North might have only three spades and five (or six!) hearts. Then North raised to four hearts, thinking that the 4-4 fit would be

South, believing it much more likely that West had led a singleton than from Q-J-10, won with his spade king and played on trumps. West took the second round and shifted to a low diamond.

Now the contract was on the line. If declarer misguessed, he would lose one heart, two diamonds and one spade ruff. Note that South did not know about West's club honors. Still, leading a singleton when holding both aces would be unappealing — where would partner's entry be? So declarer played dummy's diamond deuce and made his contract.

OBITUARIES

Celia Lee (Williamson) Hutchinson

A wonderful Nana, seamstress

Celia Lee (Williamson) Hutchinson, "Nana", age 72, of Tewksbury, formerly a long-time resident of North Reading, passed away on June 6th, surrounded by her loving family.

Nana was an amazing wife, mother, grandmother, great grandmother, and friend. She was a seamstress who could sew wedding dresses, feety pajamas and mend broken hearts. Nana was never too busy to listen, to lend a hand, to help a friend in need - never asking for anything in return. She treated everyone like gold and when she spoke with someone, she made them feel as if they were the only person in the world. She loved to laugh and more often than not, made us all laugh.

Nana loved holidays and family get-togethers; any chance to spend time with her family. She was a fighter - perhaps the greatest fighter the world has ever known - as she overcame challenges when most would have given up. Through all the pain, she never once complained. Instead she cherished every moment on this earth, so that she could spend just one more minute with her loved ones. She was our miracle and we were hers.

Celia was the beloved wife of Walter "Hutch" Hutchinson. She was the devoted mother of Walter Hutchinson and his wife Marilyn of Pelham, NH, Michelle MacInnis of Tewksbury, Robert MacInnis Jr of Lowell and Lisa Sullivan and her husband Greg of Wilmington.

She leaves her grandchildren Robert MacInnis III and his wife Shannon, Alyssa and Dillon MacInnis, Ashley and Venessa Hutchinson, Charlene and Glenn Sullivan. Loving great grandmother of Jacob and Joseph MacInnis. Celia was the cherished daughter of the late Ernest and Elizabeth (Dupe) Williamson.

She was the sister of Frank Williamson of Peabody and the late Harold Williamson and Joan Kadlec. Celia was the daughter-in-law of Clarence Hutchinson of Somerville. She is also survived by many nieces, nephews and friends.

Family and friends will gather for a funeral service at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rt 62) Wilmington, on Friday, June 10th, at 10:30 a.m. Interment Riverside Cemetery, North Reading.

Visiting hours will be held at the funeral home on Thursday, June 9th, from 4 - 8 p.m. Memorial donations in Celia's name can be made to Mass General Hospital for the benefit of the Stem Transplant and Discovery Fund, Attn: Tyrone Latin, Development Office, 125 Nashua St., Suite 540, Boston, MA 02114, checks made payable to "Massachusetts General Hospital".

36th annual Exhibition held in Wilmington

A Passion for Art

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

paige@yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON — The Wilmington Arts Council held its 36th Annual Art Exhibition this past weekend at its location on Middlesex Avenue.

Housed in the old Baptist Meetinghouse, c.1839, the arts council building has gone through many incarnations, including a jail and the old town hall.

Through the advocacy of dedicated members, the building was eventually granted to the arts council by a vote at Town Meeting more than twenty years ago.

The current council, the Wilmington arm of the Massachusetts Cultural Council, shares a passion for art in all forms and seeks to share it with the community. The art show is but one piece of the larger mosaic of art and artistry that takes place via the Council in that space.

The art show itself has migrated from an outdoor event off the town common to a regionally respected showing of artwork from several communities encompassing the categories of photography, acrylics, watercolor, and mixed media such as textiles.

Open to all artists regardless of residence, the art show draws exhibitors from a large network, several of whom return year after year to participate in the show.

Judges, who are respected artists and instructors in their field, award ribbons and prizes for best entrant in each category of medium, with the top winner taking home a cash prize.

"Qualities considered include originality, composition, and use of the media," according to Louise Anderson, a Council member.

Shows do not have a specific theme, allowing each artist to showcase the artwork of their choice. A modern art hanging system and track lighting enhance the paintings and displays, and are part of the numerous improvements that the council members have made to the space over the years.

Council Chair Linda Molloy, herself a landscape photographer and watercolor artist explained that the Council offers art lessons for students, the oldest one an active 90-year-old.

"I have a lifelong love of art and, through lessons and learning from others, my exposure and skills have evolved," said Molloy.

To that end, the Council is proud that the space is filled almost every night of the week with art lessons, piano lessons, musical groups, musical recitals and student art shows.

The Merrimack Valley Chorus rehearses in the space, as do the Stuart Highlanders, an award-winning bagpipe and drum band, and the space is available for private rentals, too.

Additional Wilmington Arts Council members were on hand to share information about the show including Ruth Camber, a watercolor and oil artist, Jean Anne Chang, current Treasurer and past Chair, and a watercolor painter and photographer focused on wildlife and floral macro photography, Jane Crane, a RISD graduate, past Chairwoman, quilter, and watercolor artist, and Marge Elia, member and watercolor artist. All are active artists with an interest in one or more media, and are very involved in making the Arts Council vibrant and relevant for the public.

Dedication to the arts and the community keeps these members involved and energized about the great things that happen in their space. They encourage the public to check their website and take art classes or attend their shows.

Students are often adults who are reigniting a passion or interest in painting they may have put on hold many years ago, or are young artists looking to gain some expert instruction.

You can find their classes and schedule online at www.wilmingtonartcenter.org. Add a little art to your world!

The Wilmington Arts Council art show. The building dates back to 1839 and has been in use ever since. Dedicated members continuously improve the space, which was granted to the arts council by the town in the late '90s.

Visit several local sprinkler parks

Beat the heat with splash pads

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

paige@yourtowncrier.com

As the mercury rises and schools start to let out for the summer, families may be looking for some ideas on how to keep the kids cool, occupied and electronics-free.

A great way to get them outdoors and running around is to visit a sprinkler park. Known also as splash pads, sprinkler parks are engineered water features which have recirculating filtered water sources that spray, splash, sprinkle and dump water by the bucketful on the kids. They are a great way to stay cool, often for a very minimal cost or for free.

Part of our state and local parks, communities that are fortunate enough to have the infrastructure to support these play areas are happy to have kids from all cities and towns enjoy these cool spaces.

Sprinkler parks are often paired with a playground of some sort and usually have picnic tables and restroom facilities, though they may range from portable outhouses to permanent structures.

It is a good idea to bring sunscreen, bug spray, and wear water shoes while at these spots. Though some sprinkler parks have cushioned surfacing on the ground, it is advised for safety and hygiene to wear waterproof footwear.

Here are some local spots that you can roll into your summer plans. Always check the websites before you head out and remember that the temperature usually has to hit a certain mark before the water will be turned on — typically at 80 degrees.

Billerica-Manning State Forest
www.town.billerica.ma.us

Manning State Forest covers thirty five acres right off of Route 3 on Route 129. There is a $3 parking fee, or it is free with the DCR State Parks Pass. There are restrooms and picnic tables and the park is dog friendly. This sprinkler pad has 7 pieces and offers additional trails for hiking. Open 9:00am - 6:00pm daily.

Lowell-Shedd Park

www.lowellma.gov

Shedd Park was renovated in 2007 and includes a splash pad and large playground area, fenced in next to each other. The pad is open May 27 - June 30 from noon - 4pm and July 1 it opens from noon - 6:00pm. A covered picnic area offers some shade and a large walking track and tennis courts provide activities for all ages.

The city is opening two new additional splash pads this year - one at O'Donnell Park and Mulligan Park. Check the website as opening dates have not been determined as yet. This park is free of charge.

Dracut-Veteran's Memorial Park
www.dracutma.gov

Veteran's Memorial Park is smaller and less crowded than Shedd. It has a nice play structure, restrooms, a paved walking trail, and is handicapped accessible. A large field is great for running and they have a concession stand, though it is not always open. This park is free.

Belmont-Beaver Brook Reservation
www.Mass.gov

Right on Trapelo Road, Beaver Brook has been around forever. Walking trails, restrooms, free parking, and interesting rocks to climb on and dodge the water sprays. Footwear absolutely recommended here for climbing so as not to slip. This spot is especially good for younger kids. Open 9:30am - 7:00pm.

Derry, NH-Don Ball Park
www.derry.nh.us

This park in Derry even lets you reserve it for a party or group event. The park has picnic pavilions, a play area and open fields. It is usually open on weekend with water but will run during the week weather permitting. Best to call before heading out.

Similar to the other parks, Derry has a playground right next to the splash pad which really helps accommodate the needs of families with kids spanning several age groups.

Andrew Medros overcomes diabetes, dyslexia with 'grace and maturity'

pletely new way of eating. Support from his parents and attendance at a special camp helped him find his way. But during that same year, he also found out he had a learning disability.

"He always had a fabulous personality and was a likable kid, but he always struggled with school work," his mother, Christine Medros explains. When his grades went down drastically in Middle School, his parents made the decision to have him tested.

"We found out he had pretty significant dyslexia," his mom says. "It was masked probably by his very good memory."

Andrew could listen and be fine understanding and dealing with various subjects, but written tasks and reading were tough.

"We found this out later in his life, so public school really wasn't an option," Christine Medros said. "He needed the intensity of Landmark."

Landmark is a private school (grades 2-12) which provides education to students with language-based learning disabilities. They focus on both educational and social potential.

Landmark is part of the Massachusetts Association of 766 Approved Private Schools (maaps) which is a non-profit organization of private special education schools approved by the Commonwealth for services to students with special needs.

There at Landmark, Andrew fit right in. Surrounded by a supportive staff and other students who were successfully dealing with learning disabilities, he flourished. He graduated with a 3.88 GPA and has been accepted to several colleges.

At Landmark, he was also very involved in extracurricular activities to include student council, the investment club, and the student advocates program. He played on the lacrosse team and golf team and served as varsity captain.

"Landmark will certainly miss his enthusiasm, his dedication to his studies and his overall positive attitude and energy," says William Barrett, Head of Landmark High

Christine is quite proud of the way Andrew has "dealt with this adversity." She praises her son's grace and maturity. "There's always a way; never give up," the reflective mom said to families faced with a similar struggle. "You can actually look at the bright side and make it work for you. Doing things in a different way does not necessarily mean it is a bad thing."

As for Andrew himself, he voices a similar message to other young people with learning disabilities. "Don't let anything like this define you," he said wisely. "There's nothing to be ashamed of; it's okay to have to do something differently."

"It may not be easy, but in the long run you will be a stronger person."

He recalls a classmate saying it is like running a marathon with leg weights. It may take longer, and you will not be first. But you will finish, and you will be stronger for it.

"This really resonates with me," he said. "In the long run, it really helps you if you go through more to succeed... it feels even that much better when you do."

Medros is off to new adventures. This fall he heads to Bryant University in Smithfield, Rhode Island to pursue a degree in business. But before that he takes what he describes as the opportunity of a lifetime. He will travel to India with his closest friend from Landmark who graciously invited Andrew to come home with him for a visit after graduation.

High school graduation is definitely just a start for this courageous young man.

Wilmington Relay For Life set for Friday, June 17

Relay for Life Committee Chair Joe Martiniello recently announced the Boston Burger Company food truck will be joining the festivities again this year. The town's annual Relay event is Friday June 17th at 5:30 pm at the High School. That family fun gathering honors cancer survivors and their caregivers. Boston Burger will be with them from 5:30-8 pm.

"Since the event is open to the public and not just registered teams, this a chance for people to try the award winning burgers without traveling into busy Somerville," explains Relay committee member Sheryl Walsh. "And they will have salads and other food choices on the menu as well."

Boston Burger Company is the Triple Crown of Burgers. They won Rachel Ray's Battle of the Burger when they appeared on her show. Guy Fieri featured them on Diners, Drive-ins, and Dives. And Boston magazine named them Boston's Best Burger.

Owner and Chef Paul Mal-vone is from Wilmington. "He appeared on nationwide TV as one of three finalists when he won Rachael's Ray's Battle of the Best Burger. He warned the other contestants, 'You're in for a burger beat down.' And he held true to his words. The winning entry was Malvone's Hot Mess Burger described by one judge as 'an event on a plate.'"

This will mark the eighth year for the Wilmington American Cancer Society fun-filled experience. The summer Relay itself is an overnight happening. Activities, food and entertainment are part of the celebration.

Teams of people camp out and take turns walking around the track. Music, costumes and decorations set the mood for them. Each team has a representative walking at all times during the event because cancer never sleeps.

For more information, contact Julie Rauseo at 781-314-2668 or Julie.Rauseo@caner.org and visit www.relayforlife.org/WilmingtonMA.

Wilmington Dog Park to officially open on June 15th

The Wilmington Dog Park opens for play on Wednesday, June 15th with an "Unleashing Ceremony" to take place at 8:00 am. The Dog Park is located at Town Park, 823 Main Street. The public and pooches are invited to attend.

The Dog Park consists of two fenced-in areas; a 13,500 square foot area for all dogs, and a 6,600 square foot area for small dogs only. Obstacles in each area include hoops, tubes, and stumps. The Park is open to all licensed dogs. Dogs must wear a collar with valid tags displayed at all times. It is a carry-in, carry-out facility, meaning owners must take all refuse, including pet waste, from the park. Owners are asked to be kind and leave nothing behind.

The idea for a dog park was raised during the planning for the Yentile Farm Recreational Facility. A dog park was consistently rated highly in the public surveys as a desired feature. It was determined that Yentile Farm was not a suitable site for a dog park.

With guidance from Selectman and Yentile Farm Development Committee Chair, Judy O'Connell, the Town sought a more suitable location. Town Park was selected due in part to its proximity to a highly popular trail frequented by many dog owners.

The Town is also seeking to establish a "Friends Group" consisting of residents interested in helping champion the park, to keep it safe and enjoyable for dogs and their owners. If you are interested, contact Animal Control Officer, Chris Sullivan, by tweeting #WilmDogPark to @WilmingtonACO, or call Animal Control at 978-658-5071.

For more information about the Unleashing Ceremony, contact the Recreation Department at 978-658-4270.

dership as MASBO President during her first year as a school superintendent."

DeLai's involvement with MASBO predates her time with Wilmington, going back to her time as an assistant superintendent at Reading public schools.

"The level and quality of professional development that MASBO offers to its members is outstanding," DeLai said. "They do a fantastic job of keeping all the members apprised of the things that are changing in the world of school business, and it's changing every year."

As part of the award, Superintendent DeLai will receive a $1,000 grant from RISO, Inc. to be used for the district.

When the grant is officially presented at the school committee meeting on June 22, DeLai knows what she is recommending.

"If the school committee will so allow, my recommendation, something that I'm certainly passionate about, is to fund the ability for our special education students to be able to attend the Special Olympics each year," DeLai said. "At least for the next few years, it will offset the expenses of the buses, food, and other costs for sending kids to Special Olympics."

This past year, six students at the High School were able to participate in the Special Olympics, but DeLai would like to see that expand to all grade levels.

"We have students at all grade levels that would love to participate in Special Olympics, and Special Olympics allows children as young as eight," she explained. "My hope is that the school committee will approve this funding to send larger teams to the Special Olympics each year."

Wilmington High School senior left-handed pitcher Jackson Gillis started his last game in a Wildcat uniform last Thursday as the 'Cats were defeated by Reading 5-1, in Division 2 North Sectional tournament play held at Reading High School. Rockets top Wildcats 5-1 in first round tournament action

Baseball team's disappointing season comes to an end

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
READING - The up and down and frankly disappointing season came to an end for the Wilmington High School Baseball team.

On Thursday afternoon, the No. 14 seed Wildcats were defeated in the first round of the state tournament for the second year in a row by the No. 3 seed Reading Rockets, 5-1, in a first round Division 2 North sectional tournament game played at Reading High School.

Wilmington ends the season with a 10-11 record, while Reading since moved on beating Marblehead 7-5 and are now waiting to face Burlington or Lynn Classical in the sectional semi-finals.

"We didn't hit the ball the way I was hoping we would today and we left a lot of guys on base and we didn't do that when we had been hitting and winning ball games," said Wilmington head coach Aldo Caira. "That's (what happened) in a nutshell."

Wilmington managed just four base hits all game - all singles - but had three batters get hit by a pitch and two more get a walk. But on the flip side, Wilmington stranded eight runners on base, including having second-and-third with one out in the second and the threat ended with back-to-back strikeouts.

"Their pitcher had a nice little curveball and it caught us all off guard and we were just looking at them," said Caira. "Some of those pitches came in a little high, but you have to foul those off. We needed to be more aggressive today at the plate."

On the other end, Wilmington senior pitcher Jackson Gillis tossed his final game in a Wildcat uniform. Although his command and velocity was much better than it was in his previous start, he didn't dominate and pitch the way he has in some games in the past. He gave up five runs, three earned on nine hits while walking two, hitting one and striking out just three.

"He got hit around a bit," said Caira of Gillis. "There were a couple of dinky hits and just a few slow hit balls down the third base line. But hey that's part of baseball. I actually thought (Gillis) got stronger as the game went on but hey it's a part of the game. This is a very good Reading team."

Reading scored two runs in the bottom of the second on three hits and an infield error. The Rockets added three more in the bottom of the fourth on four consecutive hits, a double, a bunt single and two more singles making it 5-0. Wilmington scored its lone run in the top of sixth when Brian Cavanaugh singled, moved up to second and third on passed balls and was driven home on a sacrifice fly by Danny Gracia.

Gillis went on to retire nine of the last ten batters. "It's going to be different next year not having Gillis (as part of the team next year) that's for sure," said Caira. "Whenever he takes the mound, everyone is afraid of him. And when teams do beat him, it's like they have taken down a professional pitcher. He's going to be very tough to replace. A kid like this comes around once in a coach's lifetime."

Wilmington had pretty big expectations heading into the season with the Big Three on the mound with Gillis, Matt Woods and Gracia. After a 9-6 start, the

Gaudreau finishes fifth at All-State Meet

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
WESTFIELD - After breaking Mike Esposito's 1970 record in the 200-meters with a time of 22.15 seconds at the Class C Eastern Mass Championship Meet, Wilmington High junior Joe Gaudreau came back this past Saturday to improve on that mark at the All-State Track-and-Field Championship Meet held at Westfield State College. After finishing second in his pretrial heat with a time of 22.23, Gaudreau came back for the finals and ran 22.26 but finished fifth. He seemed pretty disappointed afterwards.

"In the preliminary race, I finished second and I felt tired," he said. "In the finals, I ran pretty much the same time but everyone else just ran faster than me. I don't feel like that I ran my best. I was pretty tired though. It was just as hot last week if not hotter, so

Last year as a sophomore, Gaudreau finished 17th with a time of 23.18 at the same meet. A year later, he finished with a much improved time of 22.26 and finished fifth in the entire state.

"It feels good. I mean last year I finished seventeenth. I think my form got better from last year, my starts got better and my running got better," he said.

Gaudreau will not compete this Saturday at the 71st annual New England Championship Meet to be held at Willow Brook Park in New Britain, Connecticut.

Gaudreau was also a part of the 11th place 4x100 relay team along with Brad Aldrich, Steve Godfrey and Evan Sperlinga. They ran a combined time of 43.99 seconds.

onds.

Finally senior Kyle Nelson finished up his terrific outdoor and indoor seasons (as well as football) by finishing 14th in the entire state in the shot put, throwing 48-08 feet.

Astros face the Cards on the diamond

Farm League
Astros vs Cardinals

In a game where the offense was humming as usual, the Astros turned in one of the most impressive defensive performances of the year. Ryan Gray made a great catch from the catcher position and Roman DiZoglio and Kevin Pruslin each had innings with two unassisted ground ball putouts.

Erin McCarthy was her usual spectacular self and Quinn Stockman, Chris DeFilippo, Isaac Tavares, and Mikey Taylor were some others adding to the effort. Connor Sullivan made several outstanding plays including a nice running catch to end the game.

James Passerini led the way with four. Gray had two bombs for doubles, DiZoglio went 3-for-3, Sullivan added a deep blast for a double, and Dylan Alexander's late inning single was a shot.

Evan Cummings, McCarthy, and Stockman added three hits each as well. Alexander, Stockman, Cummings, and DiZoglio all pitched well.

The Cardinals were led by strong pitching from Adam Veliz and Joseph Fallis; solid defense from Alexander, D'Anna, Jack McLennan and Declan Savage, and timely hitting from Kyle Bridge, Nathan Caples, David Dynan and Ronin Uftring.

Wilmington High senior baseball player Connor Zaya, shown here with his parents Claire and Tom after graduating this past Sunday. Last Thursday Connor played his final game, while his father, the Athletic Director at Reading High School has the tough time of rooting on both teams. (Facebook photo).

Reading AD and Father of WHS Catcher

A tough but proud day for Tom Zaya

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
READING - For most of the game, Tom Zaya stood off to the first base/right field line, well away from the diamond. His emotions were all over the place throughout the seven innings and certainly after the game was over. And who could blame him?

The Reading Memorial High School Athletic Director, now in his fourth season after replacing Phil Vaccaro, was cheering for both Reading and Wilmington when the two Middlesex League Baseball teams squared off against one another in the first round of the Division 2 North sectional tournament held last Thursday at Reading High School.

On one side for Zaya were his Reading kids and on the other side was his oldest of three children, Connor Zaya, the starting catcher for the Wildcats.

"(I'm having) a real hard time," said Tom as his eyes filled up. "You know I played here, I grew up here and it's tough, it really is. I'm embarrassed to be feeling this way, but it's tough and tougher than I ever thought it would be."

The first time these two teams met was in the regular season and Wilmington won that battle. The second time, in the playoffs, Reading came away with a 5-1 win.

"It was a good game by both teams and two good teams," said Tom. "I have watched both teams a lot this year and both teams got a tough draw and you don't like to see two good Middlesex League teams face each other in the first round, but that's what it is."

While Tom has watched both teams a handful of times this season, he's also witnessed a terrific maturation process of his son Connor, who emerged as Wilmington's number one catcher. Connor certainly isn't Pudge Rodriguez back there, but one thing is for sure the kid worked his tail off, improved leaps and bounds, especially defensively with his footwork and throwing arm.

"He's a real good athlete," said Dad of his son. "He's not a catcher per say but he works really hard at his trade."

In this game Connor went 0-for-2 at the plate, while Reading was 1-for-1 in the steal department. Last week against Austin Prep in a must win game, Zaya gunned down a base stealer in a huge moment of the game.

"His footwork improved but I thought his arm really improved," said Dad. "He threw one or two kids out last week and he definitely improved as the season went on. No doubt."

The loss ended the season and athletic career for Connor, who played the same two sports his father did in high school, soccer and baseball, just except for different teams.

"This is my fourth year as AD and I took over for a great AD in Phil Vaćaro," said Tom. "I played for Phil when I was here in soccer and I also played baseball for Peter Moscariello. I grew up in Reading. My kids have all grown up in Wilmington as we decided to move there and it's been a good ride."

Tom previously spent 22 years as a physical education/health teacher at both the Parker Middle School and at Reading High before being named the RMHS Athletic Director for the 2012-13 school year.

Before becoming a teacher in Reading, Tom attended Bridgewater State College and played three years of baseball, before returning to his hometown as a senior to student-teach. He hasn't left Reading since - well except to return home to his wife and children.

Connor is the oldest of three children with Riley, a sophomore and McKenzie, a current eighth grader and she'll be at the high school in the fall. - the right high school, Wilmington that is.

As for Connor, he won't be in Wilmington too much longer now that he has graduated.

"Connor will be going to Coastal Carolina. He's not going to play but he will enjoy watching some Division 1 college baseball and enjoy the nice weather," said Tom.

team struggled down the stretch winning one of its last six games.

"It's not what I had hoped for. We lost a couple of close games to Stoneham and Tewksbury, and other games we should have won but again we didn't get the clutch hits that we needed in those games," said Cairra. "It comes back to get you and today it got us."

Wilmington will lose nine seniors including Gillis, Cavanaugh, Justin Leger, Joe Kelley, Connor Zaya, Matt Spurr, Nick Poli, Justin Kannally and Matt Woods.

"We're losing nine seniors, but we have three real good sophomores who will be back as juniors with Gracia, (Chris) Grecco and (Graham) Smith. We'll have a decent nucleus coming back and I know the JV team had a nice season so some of those guys should help us," said Cairra.

Softball team hooked by the Fishermen

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

GLOUCESTER -- Heading into their matchup with Gloucester last Thursday in the first round of the Division 2 North sectional tournament, the No. 11 seed Wilmington High Softball team knew it would not be easy to knock off the No. 6 Fishermen on their home field.

Gloucester however, may not have realized what a difficult opponent Wilmington would be, as the Wildcats put quite a scare into their favored opponents before falling by a score of 9-6, with a late inning rally sparking Gloucester to the win.

With the loss, Wilmington closed out their season with an overall record of 13-8, while Gloucester improved to 14-6 and moved on to the sectional quarterfinals where they defeated Arlington Catholic on Monday to earn a spot in the semi-finals.

Wilmington came out strong and scored two runs in the first on a two RBI single by sophomore infielder Antonia Kieran, plating sophomore Dana Goulet and junior Shannon Horgan. The Wildcats had the potential to do some more damage, but they left the bases loaded to end the inning.

Gloucester would score a run in each of the first three innings to take a 3-2 lead with a Taylor Abbott RBI single up the middle giving the Fishermen the lead.

Gloucester threatened to add to their in the fourth inning, but a great defensive play by sophomore second baseman Liz Gordon helped to start a double play, thwarting the rally and giving the Wildcats some momentum heading to the top of the fifth inning where junior Jen Dovidio led off with a home run to tie the game at 3-3.

frame. After a Sara Francis bunt single, Meagan Manning came through for the Fishermen with a two RBI triple to give the Fishermen an 8-6 lead.

Manning would later come around to score to make it 9-6 heading into the seventh inning, and they Wildcats were unable to mount another comeback.

While she would have liked to see her team come out on top, Wilmington coach Audrey Cabral-Pini was far from disappointed in her team either in this game or in what they accomplished during a season where the Wildcats had only four seniors and were loaded with freshmen and sophomores, including freshman pitcher Ally Moran and an infield that included sophomores Antonia Kieran, Liz Gordon and Dana Goulet along with junior Jennifer Dovidio.

"We had a great season," Wilmington coach Audrey Cabral-Pini said. "And with the entire infield coming back the future looks very promising."

Wilmington In-Town Soccer highlights

Girls Grade 1
Western NY Flash
vs. Boston Breakers
 The air was full of excitement, as the much anticipated match between the Western NY Flash and the Boston Breakers commenced. Fantastic ball skills were displayed by Ruby Poulo and Amy Keohane resulting in goals by Celina Vo, Gabby Carriglio and Emma Tarin. The midfield and defensive play of Kalea Lamb, Katelyn Perkins, and Angelina Vo kept the home team in excellent shape. The crowds gathered at the Shawsheen fields for this back and forth game between Western NY Flash and the Boston Breakers. The Boston Breakers led by Ellie Gouthro, Megan Smith, Leah Hanafin got the crowd jumping out of their seats. Emma Nolan led the scoring charge, while the great defensive effort of Isabel Carriere, Heidi Ferrer and Abigail Engvaldsen kept the action going.

Boys Grade 1
NE Revolution
vs. NY Red Bulls
 The New York Red Bulls defensive stand, led by Jackson Griffith and Chase O'Brien, not only struck fear in the New England Revolution, but will be feared by future opponents as well.

It was this team defense that led to counter attacks by Preston Hunt, Zachary Atwater and Rafael Hernandez Osorno, ultimately leading to goals scored by Zachary Atwater, Jackson Griffith and Nicholas Melaragni. Timely saves by Preston Hunt and Chase O'Brien helped strengthen a solid team effort.

The offense was once again on fire for the New England Revolution as they took on their tough opponent NY Red Bulls. The great combination play of Fernando Gunera and Nathan Anderson led to goal scoring opportunities.

Cameron Molina and Kyle Price continued the offensive power, while James Savoie and Ethan Lydon were right behind them pressuring the defense and as the Revolution ended the game on top.

DC United
vs. Columbus Crew
 In what could have been confused as a World Cup Match, the Crew had great offensive pressure from Thomas Murphy the entire game. This led to goals by Theo Bryson, Jack Cronin, Jonathan Malley and Dillan Roberts.

This was coupled with steel-like defense by the entire Crew team that led to an incredible game that left the crowd cheering for more.

LA Galaxy
vs. Seattle Sounders
 The Seattle Sounders were also impressive on the offensive side of the ball with great skill being displayed by Collin Holman, Cael Considine, and Riley Caples leading to goals by Cole Falk.

The defense showcased their skills today with Nolan White, Dylan Mainini, and Richard Holland keeping the ball out of their zone for much of the game.

Girls Kinders
Orlando Pride
vs. Portland Thorns

On a warm Saturday morning, the crowd was kept on the edge of their seats this week as the Orlando Pride led by the offensive skills of Gianna Oconnell and Kaia Donn resulted in scoring opportunities by Caroline Broussard and Julia Zaya.

The defense was not to be left out of this one either as Sarah Najarian and Taylor Najarian kept the ball out of their zone for much of the game. At the conclusion of the match all players received their Intown patches, what an awesome morning!

Houston Dash
vs. FC Kansas City
 In what could have been confused as a World Cup Match, the Houston Dash started off strong with great offensive pressure from Elizabeth Gray, Chloe Stryhalaleck, and Sophia Kulsa.

Coupled with the steel-like defense of Julia Marra, Lila Rosa, and Madison Scanlon, their efforts made for an incredible game. Sara Keck scored first for the Houston Dash.

Girls Second Grade
Boston Breakers
vs. Chicago Red Stars
 On a warm Saturday afternoon, the air was full of excitement, as the much-anticipated match between the Boston Breakers and the Chicago Red Stars commenced.

Fantastic ball skills were displayed by Lindsay Broussard and Cara Digiovanni resulting in goals by Casey Kelley and Skylar Nguyen.

The midfield and defensive play of Lilly Abbott, Macy Savage and Srilasya Mallajosyula kept the Breakers in excellent shape. The crowd roared to their feet when Isabella Zaya and Emma Chirichiello made some spectacular saves.

Seattle Reign
vs. FC Kansas City

The F.C. Kansas City's defensive stand, led by Katherine Hughes, Kaitlyn Shackelford, and Alison McElligott, not only struck fear in the Seattle Reign, but will be feared by future opponents as well. It was this team defense that led to counter attacks by Ava Cirone, Maria McCarthy, and Mackenzie Scanlon, ultimately leading to goals scored by Alexis LeBlanc.

Timely saves by Cayley Israelson and Samantha Bolanos helped strengthen a solid team effort.

Youth Travel Soccer and Youth Lacrosse write-ups and pictures will appear in next week's issue.

Great season comes to an end for Shawsheen Boys Lacrosse team

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
MELROSE -- It was a year of great accomplishments for the Shawsheen Tech Boys Lacrosse team. The Rams finished the regular season with a 15-5 overall record, including a perfect 10-0 mark in the CAC, capturing the school's seventh CAC championship, and their first since 2013, before adding two more wins to capture their second consecutive State Vocational Large School championship as well.

The great season came to a disappointing and last Thursday in Melrose, as the No. 5 Rams dropped in 18-5 decision to the No. 4 Red Raiders in the quarterfinals of the MIAA Division 2 North sectional tournament. With the loss the Rams finish their season at 17-6 overall, while Melrose moved on to the sectional semi-finals where they gave top seeded Beverly all they could handle before losing by a score of 14-11.

The Rams competed well against the powerful Melrose squad, but their rivals from the Middlesex League proved to be too strong for the scrappy Rams.

"They were a real good team and well coached," Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker said. "They had the ability to score off the fast pace and off of the slow offense. They were a very well rounded team from the net out. Our kids never quit though, which was nice to see."

Despite the loss, Baker was very pleased with all his team accomplished this season. While they missed out on their goal of winning a state tournament game, they achieved a great deal during the course of the season.

"We hit two of our three pre-season goals. We strive for the CAC championship every year but came up short last season, so it was nice to grab it back," Baker said. "As far as the voke, that is a great championship for the school, the program and especially the seniors to leave with that."

Several Rams were honored recently for their great individual efforts this season as well, as senior John Stokes was named CAC Defensive Player of the Year, while senior Jack Stone of Tewksbury, Zach DeLuca, Stokes, junior Jay Colletti, junior Jacob Sinclair-Steeves and sophomore Will Bouley were all selected as CAC All-Stars.

The number of all stars was another nice piece of recognition for Baker and the Rams and what they have done with their lacrosse program.

"We may have had a couple more that are better than some of the other team's top players," Baker said. "It is an honor as a program to have six players representing us next Monday in the CAC all-star game at Nashoba Tech (6 pm)."

"As far as Stokes, he is the best defender by far in the league. You can have him D up just about anyone and he will be up for the challenge. I am happy for him getting this recognition. It is very well deserved."

Stone led all Rams scorers with 60 goals on the season, while Bouley chipped in with 52 and freshman Owen Sullivan had 48. Sinclair-Steeves meanwhile, led the team in face-off wins, winning nearly 70 percent of his draws.

Of course, the Rams will be forced to say goodbye to some great graduating seniors like Stone, Josh Bouley, Stokes, Ryan Magnussen of Tewksbury and Zach DeLuca among others. This has been a special group of players for Baker, who has seen them win a league championship and two vocational championships.

"We have a lot of holes to fill in the future here. We are losing a bunch of great kids that I have had the pleasure of coaching," Baker said. "Many have played varsity minutes since their sophomore seasons. This is going to be one of those classes that will probably take a season or two to completely replace."

With that being said, Baker also knows that he does bring back a solid core next season led by players like Will Bouley and Sullivan, along with goalie Chris Abele of Tewksbury among others. It may take some time to develop more depth, but the Rams to have a good starting point for next season and beyond.

"It is a little early right now, but I am excited," Baker said. "We are returning a lot of real good players next season, so we should be ok right out of the gate. Once we are able to fill some holes with JV players or possibly incoming freshmen, we will hopefully be able to accomplish our yearly goals, the league, the state voke and wins in the tournament."

Lady Rams fall to No. 1 seed Marblehead

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
All season long the Shawsheen Tech Girls Lacrosse team had risen to every challenge in front of them, putting together a tremendous regular season, going undefeated in CAC play with a perfect 10-0 record in the league to win the CAC championship in the league's inaugural season, while going 12-4 overall in the regular season.

The Lady Rams then followed up their great regular season with even more success in the post season, winning a semi-final game in the state vocational tournament before losing in the finals, while also winning their first round game in the MIAA Division 2 North Tournament last week with a win over Lowell Catholic.

Last Thursday however, the Lady Rams finally came up against a challenge they could not meet, as they were eliminated from post season play with a 19-3 loss to No. 1 seed Marblehead in the sectional quarterfinals.

Despite the lopsided loss, first year Shawsheen coach Alex O'Reilly was proud of her team's effort against the top seeded Headers.

"Marblehead was an incredibly talented team. They moved the ball very quickly and overplayed anyone with the ball on our team," O'Reilly said. "They had some serious height as well. We would triple team the ball on defense, and their girls would literally reach over all three of our girls and take a shot. The score makes it seem like it was a rough game for us but that's a poor reflection. The girls fought hard and played the best defense and transition that I think they've played all season."

And while the final game was not what O'Reilly or the Lady Rams had in mind, the first year coach will still look back on the season as a great success.

I never could have imagined this season to play out the way it did. These girls worked so hard for everything they earned," O'Reilly said. "It was obvious at the beginning of the season that they each had put in an incredible amount of pre-season preparation. They were ready for the beginning, and they continued to work unbelievably hard every day at practice to prepare for their opponents throughout the season."

One of the biggest reasons for the Lady Rams success this season was the play of freshman goalie Julia Ryan of Wilmington who exceeded all expectations for a first year player by being named Co-MVP of the CAC.

"Without Julia I don't think our team would have been able to achieve as much as they did this year," O'Reilly said. "She has this sense of intensity and aggression during games, but off the field Julia is a quiet and humble person. It's really cool that other coaches in our league recognized her talent. In all my years playing, and now as a coach I have never heard of a freshman league MVP, just juniors and seniors."

Michelle Farragher, Catherine McKenna and Nicole Kopacz, all of Tewksbury were all selected as CAC All-Stars, along with Annie Riddle, and Hannah Dechiara, a testament to the Lady Rams great season.

"They are certainly deserving of the awards," O'Reilly said. "Michelle is the glue that holds our team together. She is an outstanding leader who takes on the role of coach when she is on the field in games. Catherine led our team with 49 goals this season. That alone speaks to her all-star title. She is a player that other teams recognize as a threat and over play, but she still manages to maneuver around them and get the ball in the net. She is fast, and has an eye for the ball whether it's on offense or causing a turnover in defense.

"Nicole Kopacz was our defensive powerhouse. That girl will throw her body through the air and come up with the ball every time. She has an incredible sense of control and discipline. As a low defender she is the last fight the opponent has to go through in order to get to the net, and Nicole takes them on fearlessly."

Farragher and Kopacz, along with fellow seniors Katie McLaren of Wilmington, Kerrie Malloy, Eliana Purtell and Kim Hayes, all wrapped their Shawsheen careers in the loss to Marblehead, as did another key member of the squad, team manager Nick Troisi.

"I already told Nick that he better plan his spring semester at UMASS Lowell because we need him back," O'Reilly said. "As for our players, these girls have set the standard for what it means to be a Shawsheen Tech girls lacrosse teammate. They have represented their school and their team in such respectable ways over the past few months."

"I am incredibly sad to see them go, but we have a lot of young talent ready to take on the jobs these six fulfilled for us. I know we will see them again in seasons to come, and there will always be a place for them. I know these seniors are a special group that our future players will always know about. They took this team to the next level, and have created a whole new chapter of Shawsheen girls lacrosse that is just getting started."

Rams Baseball team dominated by Swampscott

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
BILLERICA -- The Shawsheen Tech Baseball team saw their season come to a rather inglorious end on Saturday afternoon, as the No. 7 Rams were eliminated from post season play with a 9-1 loss No. 9 Swampscott in the first round of the Division 3 North Tournament, closing out their season with a 14-7 overall record.

After so many great memories throughout the season, including capturing a share of their third straight CAC championship and advancing to the finals of the State Vocational Championship after pulling a major upset in the first round, the Rams probably deserved a better fate in their season finale, but unfortunately they picked wrong time to play one of their worst defensive games of the season, as several errors led to the lopsided final score.

Senior Andy Diranian and junior Craig Rich each had a double for the Rams to account for their only run of the game, while senior pitcher Alex Tate of Tewksbury, in his final appearance for the Rams, allowed one earned run over 4 1/3 innings.

"Alex pitched pretty well on the day, he was hitting his spots," Shawsheen coach Brian McCarthy said. "But some early defensive mistakes hurt us. Swampscott took advantage of that, like good teams do, and we paid the price by falling behind early." The Rams may have gotten away with their sloppy play against another opponent, but against the talented Big Blue, who went 13-7 in the rugged Northeast Conference this season, the mistakes proved to be devastating.

"Swampscott was a real good team, we knew that going into the game," McCarthy said. "We knew going into the game that we would have to play our best ball of the season to continue on in the post-season, and that just didn't happen. We just let the game get too far out of hand before we started playing better defense later in the game." The performance on Saturday was very much out of character for the Rams, who despite the loss, wrapped up a sensational season that saw them win five games in a row in the final two weeks of the season to clinch a share of the CAC title along with Northeast and Whittier Tech.

"I have a lot of respect and a lot of pride in what our team accomplished this year. The group of senior leaders we had was phenomenal. They worked hard as a group all winter long getting ready for the season," McCarthy said. "They continued that hard work and leadership through a difficult spring with weather when we were tied up indoors hitting in the cages. They did a great job guiding the younger players and taking them under their wings to show them what hard work is all about.

"And how that hard work can pay off, winning the third consecutive league title and making it to the vocational tournament finals for two years in a row, I am very proud of what we accomplished as a team."

With their tremendous team success came many individual honors for the Rams. Senior second baseman Brendan O'Flaherty of Wilmington was selected as the co-MVP of the CAC, while Tate and senior catcher Evan Boczenowski were selected as CAC All-Stars.

"Brendan, Alex, and Evan had terrific seasons for us and we are proud of them. Alex and Brendan are now a two-time league all-stars Alex had another solid year on the mound for us, pitching and winning some big-time games for us. And Evan stepped up huge for us this year behind the plate taking over after the void left by Tim Lavoie," McCarthy said. "Then, Brendan being named the league's MVP was a well-deserved honor for him. He works so incredibly hard to get to where he has been. He led the team and league in virtually every offensive category this year, and on top of that is a great team leader."

Tate, along with other seven Rams seniors and team leaders, including pitcher Dan McCrehan of Tewksbury who teamed with Tate to provide a dominant top of the rotation, and star outfielder David Lindsey, also of Tewksbury, will be hard to replace, given all they accomplished this season and throughout their careers.

But McCarthy is also confident that his talented group of underclassmen has learned enough from the outgoing seniors to have another successful season next year.

"Eight seniors is a lot to replace, but we will have a great core group coming back for next year, many of whom got some great varsity experience and innings for us," McCarthy said. "We will have Craig Rich back in centerfield for us as a three year starter. Leo Frisella pitched great for us this year as a junior."

"Aaron Bennett played a good shortstop and batted in the two-spot, Ryan Cumiskey got real hot for the second half of the season and plays left field. Sophomore James Alagna was a solid DH for us this year. Adam Quinones battled and got a bunch of time in the outfield and can swing a good stick too. And sophomore Sean Flagg pitched or started four games for us and was real solid."

Wilmington High School Class of 2016 foresees sunny future despite rainy weather

By KRISTA BRESNAHAN
News Correspondent

krista@yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON—On Sunday afternoon, before a gym packed full of family, friends, teachers and town officials, a total of 199 students walked across the stage and received their diplomas as part of the Wilmington High School Graduating Class of 2016.

Though the weather was not the best, spirits were high. There was a lot of chatter filling the gym up until the graduates entered in their blue or white gowns and decorated caps to the WHS band playing the processional song "Pomp and Circumstance."

After everyone was let into brand new gymnasium, the Pledge of Allegiance was led by the 2016 Class President, Deven Langenfeld and the band performed the "Star Spangled Banner."

The first speech given by Langenfeld — who graduated with his twin brother Steven — the student farewell. Deven told many jokes, including one about the students smiling faces as they go off to realize they will have college debts. He went on to say what an honor it was for him to be Class President for three of the four years he was at WHS.

"High school has taught us many things, it has taught us a sense of community," he said in his speech. "I finally believe in the American Dream and that anything is possible. We are so lucky to have grown up in such a great town and community like Wilmington, around here we build each other up, not tear each other down."

Town Manager Jeffrey Hull then took the podium and expressed the importance of working toward your passion and finding what it is that engages you.

"Some of you may have a sense of clarity right now and know exactly what you want to be doing in the next five or ten years, and what you need to do to get there, but for many of you it will take some time, some trials," he said before the crowd. "Thomas Jefferson once said 'Our greatest weakness lies in giving up. The most certain way to succeed is always to try just one more time.' Finding your calling, it may take months, it may take years, it will take focus and sacrifice, but your obligation to yourself and to the world is to find it."

Julie Broussard, Chair-

person for the School Committee urged students to dream big and make good decisions. According to her, the community of Wilmington schools thinks of all students as family.

"I, we, all think of you as our children," she said, "The often used African proverb, 'it takes a village to raise a child,' is thought of at graduation. Here you all are today, you're surrounded by your family, your friends, your neighbors, your teachers literally surrounding you, your coaches. These are all of the people who had a hand in raising you."

Wilmington Superintendent of Schools Mary Delai gave recognition to people who are leaving the school system this year and thanked them all for their hard work. She asked students to recognize their teachers for helping them to become the individuals they are today, recognize all that their parents and guardians do for them, and recognize Principal Linda Peters for all of her commitment, support, dedication, and unwillingness to ever give up on a student.

Delai urged students to become role models.

"The fact of the matter is that you all have role models that you will remember fondly as you look back on these years," she said. "What is important to know is that as you transition from Wilmington High School students to Wilmington High School graduates, you are now given the opportunity to be a role model."

▼ Class President Deven Langenfeld, below, led WHS Graduating Class of 2016 in The Pledge of Allegiance during Commencement Exercises on Sunday.

"That could not have been more evident than when you walked through the hallways of your elementary schools on Thursday this past week. The students were in awe, you represent what they want to be someday. You provide them with incredible inspiration and motivation to continue to work hard so that someday they will have the opportunity to walk through the hallways of their schools. You are heroes to them."

Principal Linda Peters has been a longtime supporter of the students of WHS, dating back to when she was a math teacher for many years.

"When many of you signed out with me a few weeks ago you said you were sad—sad but excited—some of you said bittersweet. It is all mixed up—those feelings of happy and sad, maybe even a little scared, and maybe a little relieved," Peters said. "I am pretty sure that is what it's supposed to be. I think we all experience that mix of feelings and emotions whenever we are moving on or facing change. You are moving on, and that is a good thing."

Peters also read a poem that she had written for the class of 2016 and presented the awards to the Class Essayist, Salutatorian, and Valedictorian.

The Essayist for the class of 2016 is Kimberly Lifton, and when giving her speech she quoted "The Road Not Taken" by Robert Frost and urged the other students to "Make mistakes, find those little known facts, and take the path less traveled, you never know what adventures you'll find."

The Salutatorian for the class of 2016 is Vincent Pietropaolo who thought back on how much everyone changes throughout high school.

"We've all changed in our own ways; academically, athletically, socially, emotionally. Congratulations to all of you, you have reached maturity. Our class has a list of achievements that is quite impressive," he said.

The Valedictorian for the class of 2016 is Jessica Nussbaum who encouraged the class to keep using their unique voices to make change.

"We did not get here by staying silent. We each found our own way to represent ourselves at school and at home, whether we asked questions or wrote papers, drew cartoons or took photographs," she read. "Every person graduating today left their version of their voice somewhere in Wilmington, with some teacher or parent or friend.

"We were never alone, enveloped by silence; instead, we have always been together, surrounded by impassioned voices and encouraging minds."

After the students addressed the crowd, Teacher of the Year, as voted by the students, Lisa Bellavia got the chance to speak. She encouraged students to live in the now, but that it is also okay to look back and smile on the past.

"There are new people you're going to meet; new roommates, new professors, and new challenges and experiences," said Bellavia. "These realities, should you choose this path, may give you the nagging question of 'did I make the right decision?' but the other path you could take is to jump in, flail for a bit, and persevere."

After all of the speeches were completed, each member of the class was called up on the stage to receive their diplomas, they were officially named as the graduating class of 2016, and many students threw their decorated caps in the air in celebration.

"Pomp and Circumstance" was played one more time as the graduates and teachers exited the room, and the students moved on to whatever may be next for them.

Valedictorian Jessica Nussbaum ready for the next challenge

By KRISTA BRESNAHAN
News Correspondent

krista@yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON—Each year when it comes time for graduation, a member of the graduating class is named Valedictorian. For the Wilmington High School class of 2016, that graduating senior is Jessica Nussbaum.

During her time at WHS, Jessica Nussbaum was on the tennis team for four years and was one of the captains for this past season. She was also a tutor as well as a member of the school's cultural club.

Graduation is a scary and exciting time for all graduates. Celebrating the accomplishment of graduating from high school and moving on to whatever it may be that is coming next is a very conflicting experience.

"I'm feeling excited, proud, and nervous," said Nussbaum, "but I'm definitely looking forward to what's in front of me."

Nussbaum is moving on to the University of Miami in Florida as a major in Mathematics. Just recently in April, Nussbaum was named one of the students of the month for math.

"Math is something I think I've had the most success in, it's something I know I can do, which is why I chose to major in it."

In her Valedictorian speech, Nussbaum encouraged the other students to make themselves heard, to keep creating, and to keep using their voices to make change. She encouraged her classmates to keep working towards their dreams and being passionate in the future. She used her own fear of public speaking to show that even if it is hard, it is worth it to make yourself heard.

"Whatever you deliver is going to have worth," she said in her speech. "A simple photograph you take can become the iconic image of a movement. A brief quote you say can become the triumphant chant of a crusade. Thuli Zuma said 'every word I carry is another stone to put into place in the foundation that I'm building,' and I urge everyone sitting here to keep building upon their foundation."

"Our voice, loud or quiet, bold or hesitant, found easily or with struggle, needs to be used. That is why, despite my own fear and discomfort, I chose to still speak today, to remind you that when you have the opportunity to use your voice, make it heard."

After spending four years at Wilmington High School working hard, making friends, joining teams and clubs, and helping others, on June 5th the class of 2016 including Nussbaum was presented with their diplomas and sent off to whatever their futures may hold.

"Congratulations to everyone who is graduating today, and thank you to everyone who has helped us get here," she said.

Best wishes today & always!
